

Name Art: Who I Am

Representing someone's personality can be done with a project that involves their name and a design. The students are going to use their name to create a design that is simple and fits their personality.

1. Have the students think of a design (Brainstorm: things they like to draw, sports, hobbies, etc)
2. Lightly draw the outside with pencil
3. Then use pen, thin marker or colored pencil and write their name.
4. They can fill inside with their name and the appropriate color or fill in with just coloring.

We picked this project for Hale Woodruff because he was able to show who a person was so wonderfully in his art.
